How do you motivate passive commuters to click on a website, become activists, write letters, send emails and voice opinions at meetings? Using a little “Human Contact,” we developed a print, internet, radio and outdoor campaign that drove angry commuters into action.

We also named the brand, designed the logo and built the website. The results were dramatic.

Montgomery County realized they could save big if they could get people to recycle yard trimmings instead of bagging them for pickup at the curb. They asked The AD Agency to help them change people's behavior, which is a tall order. The County measured and quantified esults at every step, so we had to get results from day one.

We decided to win friends and converts among county residents by employing a light approach — an approach that was nonetheless backed by solid information and coupled with emotional appeal. The results have enriched the soil and the pocketbook of the county.

Our multi-award winning marketing plan included full page ads in county papers, a massive composting and grasscycling campaign, 30-second tv commercial, cable TV media buy and PSA, public relations and community outreach, multiple direct mail pieces and the adorable 'Digger the Worm' which accompanied 'Wormlab' — a natural science project that we implemented into the county school system to teach students about the value of composting.

Our Public Relations efforts gained national and local recognition for Montgomery County.

Digger the Worm is a huggable six-foot costume character designed to help make composting come alive for County kids.

"Anyone can compost, all you need is a small space or a simple enclosure.

Then add some leaves.

Spray on a little water to compact them, and you can compost more than twenty full lawn bags in here.

Financially, it makes sense. You won't have to buy lawn bags and you get lots of free mulch.

You can use it to grow wonderful things.

So many good reasons to compost and it's so easy anyone can do it.

Anyone."

The Third Street Tunnel Project is the first of a multi-phase master planned development located in Washington's central business district. Newly designed pedestrian and vehicular corridors will reconnect the Capitol Hill and East End communities, update traffic patterns, and deliver new safety features. The project is bordered by Massachusetts Avenue to the North, E Street to the South, Third Street to the West and Second Street to the East.

The goal of this project was to make travelers, residents and the general public aware of the construction project and to inform them about project updates and traffic advisories. Deliverables included a website, press releases, mass emails sent out regularly, and social media.

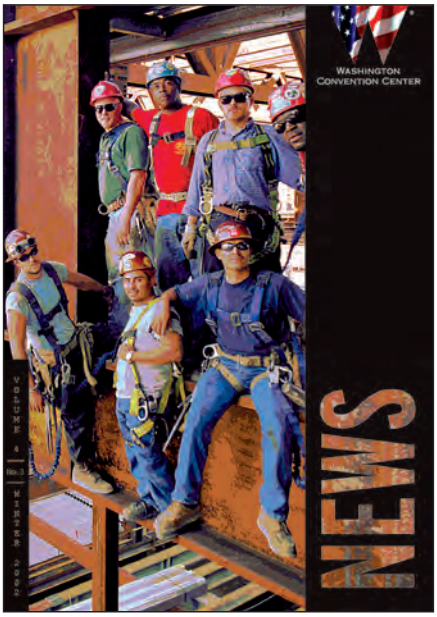
The new Washington Convention Center (WCC) was approved on a promise of $1.4 billion in economic impact and 15,000 new jobs by 2006 in a city where hospitality continues to be a major industry. Marketing efforts for the new center included a strategic marketing plan, new logo, print ads, website, brochures, newsletters, premiums, government and community relations, and tradeshow industry updates and support.

The new identity challenge was to enhance the WCC brand with a new logo that would capture and reinforce Washington, DC as America's city, while establishing a fresh new image that was a major departure from the image of the older facility. The new WCC logo was unanimously approved and successfully captured the spirit of the new convention center.

Our marketing plan included powerful print ads that established the new convention center as an architectural masterpiece and as distinctive and noteworthy as Washington's other impressive monuments.

The marketing and public relations work engaged, informed and fostered buy-in from the community, local businesses and public sector stakeholders. There were many community concerns regarding the impact of both the lengthy construction period and the completed monumental convention center that would be incorporated into one of DC's most historic and established neighborhoods.

WASHINGTON CONVENTION CENTER



Included in the campaign were many construction milestone media events, such as the groundbreaking, beam signing and the big steel wrap-up. To ensure positive media coverage, the events included the participation of community leaders, and other public and private sector spokespeople representing the various stakeholders.

The campaign proved to be a documented success. In the spring of 2003, all of DC, including the local neighborhood and business communities, as well as the surrounding region, celebrated the opening of the new Washington Convention Center.

...We're Building Another

Starting in 2003, the nation's capital will open its doors to the ultimate convention center in the form of the newest, most enchanting, one-of-a-kind venues. With beautiful granite, limestone, and a dramatic 100-foot curved glass entry, this will be an outstanding architectural and cultural treasure in a city that already harbors so many remarkable buildings.

"Obviously with DC, we have the destination," explained Lewis H. Dawley III, General Manager and CEO of the Washington Convention Center Authority, "and now we have the facility to match it."

As envisioned by the architects, eighteen acres of the structure as it lights up the sky, casting a glow upon the city. During the day, the spectacularly designed facility will welcome visitors with a stunning array of technological amenities for world-class meetings and conventions.

With exceptional use of clear glass throughout, the building offers unobstructed views to give visitors a beautiful vista of one of the world's most exciting cities. With planned external retail space, the building will give the inviting feel of most other commercial buildings in an urban environment. However, unlike any other commercial building, this one will feature a $4 million art installation managed by some of the nation's most eminent leaders in the art world.

The new facility is a significant part of the growth of the new development in downtown Washington; it is also the symbol of the rebirth of this great city. The center will generate over $1 billion in economic activity annually, 4,000 convention and tourism industry-related jobs in the metropolitan Washington region. As economic engine, it will also spur rapid retail and residential development in surrounding communities.

Through a self-imposed tax, downtown DC property owners wanted to upgrade and revitalize their area of the city. They chose The AD Agency to develop a strategic marketing plan and brand identity for the area.

We also needed to inform the public of the group's efforts and the changes that would occur. We accomplished this by staging a media event to kick off the city's new image.

We made headlines starting with our innovative invitation—a CD containing the 1960's hit song "Downtown." On the day of the event, every local TV station, radio station and newspaper was present, including front page coverage in USA Today and a feature story on CNN.

Public-private teaming is revitalizing downtowns

By Maria Puente
USA TODAY

WASHINGTON — The latest effort to revive this city's business area is in the hands of 78 uniformed men and women assigned to assure the public that downtown is as safe, clean and easy to negotiate as a suburban shopping mall.

But they're not city cops or sanitation workers. They are employees of a new public-private partnership called the downtown Business Improvement District.

The workers, dressed in red jackets and blue trousers, took to the streets for the first time Monday armed with maps, brooms and walkie-talkies. Their mandate is to welcome shoppers, steer lost tourists, erase graffiti, find shelters for the homeless and report crimes to D.C. police.

The nation's capital is the latest of more

▶ Downtown Baltimore, where 95% of workers surveyed reported feeling safer thanks to uniformed public-safety guides employed by the Downtown Improvement District.

▶ Downtown Philadelphia, where the number of retailers is up 17% since 1992.

▶ Downtown Phoenix, where sales-tax revenues are up 26% over the past three years because of increased traffic.

"Seven years ago, you could shoot a cannon off in downtown Phoenix at 7 p.m., it was so empty. But today, we have more people downtown at night than we do during the day," says Margaret Mullin, head of that city's improvement district.

The recent transformation of New York's Times Square from squalid skid row to sparkling tourist mecca is perhaps the most widely known success story. Now there are 40 different improvement dis-

Several dozen journalists and other media folks received CDs last week featuring Petula Clark's version of the old chestnut "Downtown," courtesy of the organizers of the city's new "business improvement district"—a 120-block area of downtown Washington surrounding the MCI Arena.

The idea was to publicize today's press conference launching the BID. Over the next year, merchants will kick in about $6 million to hire 70 private security guards and maintenance workers and some staff who are supposed to make the area cleaner and safer for the visitors they hope to attract to the sports arena and nearby restaurants and shops.

If it all works out, maybe Petula will be prophetic: "The lights are much brighter there, you can forget all your troubles, forget all your cares and go downtown...."

Safety and Maintenance Teams Kick Off a $38.5 Million Effort

By Stephen C. Fehr

Brandon Morrow, of Southeast Washington, began a new job yesterday, picking up trash in one of the filthiest areas of downtown Washington: the 900 block of F Street NW, near the National Portrait Gallery. Within an hour, Morrow, 26, had made it halfway down one side of the street, filling nearly four plastic trash bags.

A few blocks away, on 11th Street NW near Ford's Theatre, Will Anderson, of Northeast Washington, started work as a public safety officer. Dressed in a red jacket and cap, black pants, white shirt and navy tie and carrying a whistle and two-way radio, he attracted attention immediately. A tourist from Ecuador stopped to find out if he could view the theater. Russ asked Anderson for directions to the FBI building.

The AD Agency was hired to design and produce the new Fletcher, Heald & Hildreth logo, brand and website. The new site is slick, attractive, easy to navigate, informative, and all the good things that a law firm website should be. It introduces Fletcher, Heald & Hildreth, and lets you know who they are and what they can do.

You can read about the current team of lawyers and the firm s history. (They've been around for 74 years, almost as long as the FCC.) On the home page we've included interesting factoids about each of the attorneys. One factoid per view—just hit refresh to see a diffe ent one. Once you get started, it's hard to stop—like eating peanuts.

It's got nice photos of everyone. We debated what the photos should look like. Should they pose in faux meetings or courtroom dioramas, looking brutally hard-nosed yet supremely reasonable? Should they emphasize their softer side, dressing up in recreational garb (wetsuits? cycling outfits? camo?)? Should they pose in non-office setting looking tanned, rested, and ready? We went with down-to-earth, the way they really look—except in person they are in full color.

The website has links to their blog and their informative publications, the Memo to Clients and FHH Telecom Law. The front page also includes the headlines from their most recent blog postings, in the unlikely event that you haven't seen them elsewhere.

The National Capital Revitalization Corporation (NCRC) was a publicly chartered, entrepreneurial corporation committed to revitalizing District neighborhoods through business, real estate development initiatives and partnerships.

The AD Agency was selected to enhance and expand the NCRC brand and develop marketing materials that effectively communicated the NCRC message to their various stakeholders.

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION NATIONAL HIGHWAY TRAFFIC SAFETY ADMINISTRATION (NHTSA)

The AD Agency was recruited again by the National Highway Traffic Safet Administration to create a website for its “Buying a Safer Car” division. The agency developed a home page which enabled users to access a comprehensive database related to crash test results, safety features, and other data about new and used cars. We also provided links to actual crash test footage for the diffe ent vehicle types.

Ex-top cop: Expand Capitol complex and ban vehicles

ROBERT MCCARTNEY

Gainer: More needs to be done to help prevent terrorist attacks

Robert McCartney

Nobody knows better than Terry Gainer how to make the U.S. Capitol secure. He's the only person to have served as both chief of the Capitol Police and sergeant at arms of the Senate.

So it's worth heeding Gainer's views, now that he's free to speak out after retiring last month from the Senate job at the end of 47 distinguished years in law enforcement.

Gainer says he thinks that the threat of terrorist vehicle bombs obliges Congress and the District to substantially expand the Capitol complex by gradually buying up surrounding blocks and banning traffic there.

Basically, he wants to create a spacious, pedestrian-only campus at the east end of the Mall. It would bar vehicles from more than a dozen square blocks where they're now allowed and extend from the Capitol north to Union Station and east to Second Street.

Many in the city are sure to object. His plan would wreak havoc with traffic patterns, especially by blocking through traffic along Constitution and Independence avenues. Hill residents already moan about the lack of parking.

But Gainer said last week in a wide-ranging interview that safety must come first.

"First Street and Second Street are dangerous areas to the buildings, to the Supreme Court, the House and the Senate, because of what truck bombs and car bombs can do," he said.

"There are those who would like to exploit violent rhetoric," he said. "Action after something happens is fighting the last war."

Gainer would also put a fence around Capitol Square, similar to what he called the "functional yet tasteful enclosure" around the National Gallery of Art Sculpture Garden.

These aren't idle musings. The Capitol Police Board, which he chaired, has commissioned studies on such proposals. None has been shared with the city yet.

I support Gainer's vision, for the sake of both security and expanding green space downtown. To minimize disruption, he would stretch out the project over decades, perhaps taking up to 50 years.

"The Mall gets longer, greener [and the] air cleaner, and safety abounds," Gainer said.

The authorities would have to guarantee that any changes wouldn't infringe on the constitutional right to peaceably assemble.

Gainer drew criticism in 2011 for potentially reducing space for protesters when the Capitol Complex misread Union Square, just west of the Capitol, from the Park Service.

In the interview, Gainer also urged our region to prepare more for a possible evacuation and recalled a career that amounts to a highlights reel of U.S. police work.

He graduated from the Chicago police academy a week early so his class could serve during the inhuman protests at the 1968 Democratic convention. (He said he wasn't involved in any of the cops' misbehavior, which led an official investigation to condemn what it called "a police riot.")

Later, Gainer was No. 2 at the D.C. police force during the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks and the sniper shootings the next year. He dealt with anthrax and rain threats at the Capitol, as well as playing host at presidential inaugurations and State of the Union addresses.

One major misstep was poor crowd control that caused hundreds of people to miss the 2005 swearing-in of President Obama because they were trapped in a pedestrian backup in the Third Street tunnel.

It was instantly nicknamed the Purple Tunnel of Doom because of the color codes on their inauguration tickets.

"I took a tongue-lashing for that" from Senate and House committees, Gainer said. "It was probably a well-deserved beating," he added that the problem was solved for the next inauguration.

Gainer, 66, who lives in Annapolis, is working as a part-time senior adviser to the private security company Securitas.

As part of that job, he'd like to see greater cooperation between government and business in our area to prepare for terrorist attacks or other emergencies.

In particular, Gainer urged more exercises in which authorities practice sending people home from work.

"The public-private partnership has to be better on that. Everybody can't dump their buildings at the same time," Gainer said.

"Maybe the first reaction, when we don't know what's going on, is shelter in place," he continued. "Then, in order not to overload the streets or the Metro, it would be nice if people were patient and we practiced, 'Okay, all buildings between L [Street] and N [Street], you leave now.'"

Fifteen minutes later, another set of buildings could evacuate, and so on.

Better to be overprepared than sorry later. We should listen to this voice of experience.

Senate Sergeant at Arms Terry Gainer accompanies President Obama in March 2013. Gainer, who also served as chief of the Capitol Police, says safety must come first. He wants to create a large, pedestrian-only campus at the east end of the Mall.

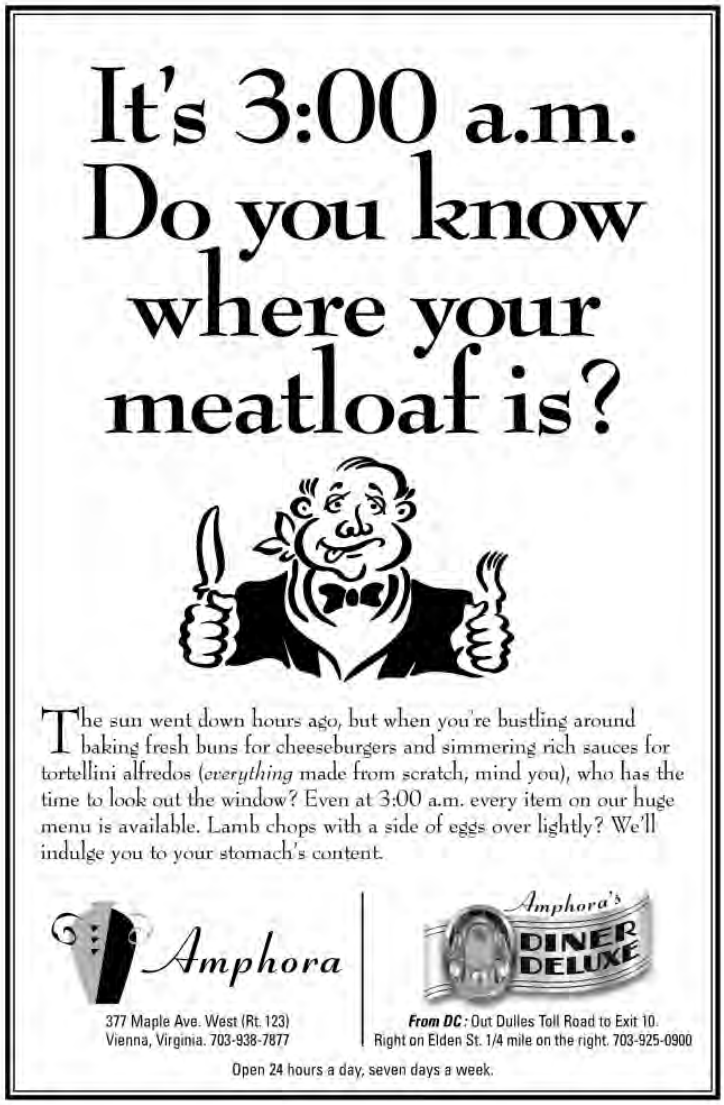
AMPHORA
RESTAURANT GROUP

It's open 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. There are no locks on the doors. You can get a 5-star meal at 3 am. In fact, you can choose from over 300 items on the menu. Needless to say, the advertising opportunities were endless. Amphora is not just another restaurant, and our ads had to reflect that. A front-page feature in The Washington Post Food section lent credibility to the restaurant by showing the family's long-time history and success in the restaurant business in Washington.



KING FARM

As one of the largest real estate developments in the D.C. area, King Farm boasts an old-fashioned neighborhood feel. Complete with colonial style homes and white picket fences, we used that warm family emotion to convince buyers they are not just purchasing a house, but a community and a home.

HIDDEN VALLEY

When Hidden Valley resort hired The AD Agency to create a successful marketing communications campaign, they were struggling with an image problem. Consumers believed it was a one-season resort rather that an all-season resort. The primary target of the campaign was the more sophisticated families throughout Pennsylvania, Ohio and the Washington D.C. metropolitan area.

We decided to use strong 4-color illustrations to convey the diffe ent seasons, and all that Hidden Valley had to offer — a beautiful 18-hole golf course, brilliant autumn foliage and lots of snow skiing. These graphics were used in newspaper, magazine and billboard advertising, brochures, and beautiful posters which were sold at the resort. We also developed a radio campaign to reach our target audience. In a three-month period, resort traffi increased dramatically, phone inquiries rose 600% and in six months sales totaled $30 million. Our campaign won two of Professional Builder Magazine's prestigious Target Awards for the Best Campaign and the Best magazine ad.

Our public relations campaign consisted of creating a 4-color newsletter detailing all of the activities at the resort, signage, and special events planning. One of our most successful events was a golf tournament weekend at the resort with more than 3,000 attendees. In addition to marketing the resort, we developed a marketing campaign to sell the new single family homes and condominiums on the mountain.

AMERICAN EXPRESS

American Express told us they wanted a “Passport” coupon booklet, to promote the use of the American Express Card. To add value and retention life we also made the booklet into an informative guide to Washington and it became one of their most successful promotions ever.

Listen to Curtis Wilson, Director of Sales and Marketing for the Washington and Baltimore area:

“It was one of the most refreshing experiences I have had working with an agency … they took our basic idea and made it fly … the work was equal to or better than the work we get from our national agencies … charge volume for the establishments that participated in the promotion increased 18% over normal expectations … the passport played a significant ole in a very successful second half of ’96…I just wish everyone we do business with would operate like The AD Agency”.

Mr. Wilson is known as a tough customer and we don’t doubt it. But we’d love to have many more such tough customers.

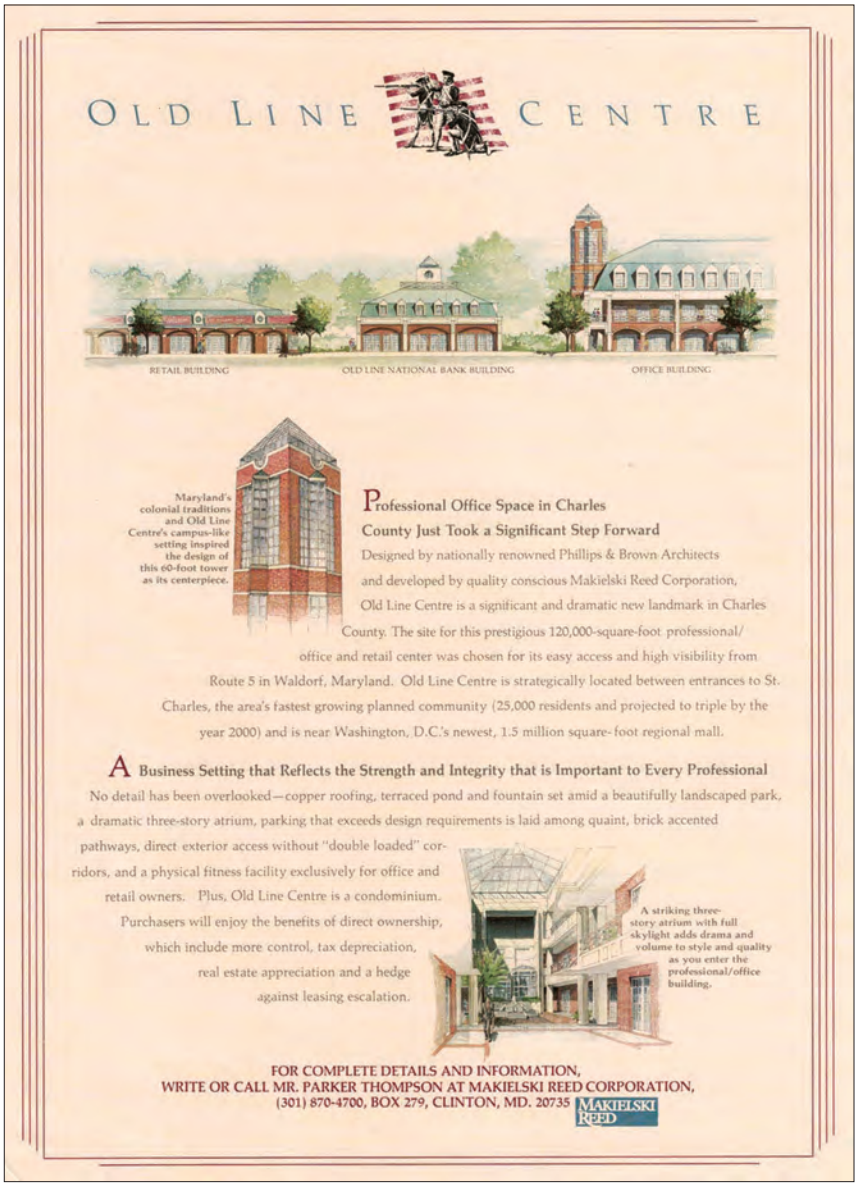
OLD LINE NATIONAL BANK



OLD LINE CENTRE

RETAIL BUILDING — OLD LINE NATIONAL BANK BUILDING — OFFICE BUILDING

Maryland's colonial traditions and Old Line Centre's campus-like setting inspired the design of this 60-foot tower as its centerpiece.

Professional Office Space in Charles County Just Took a Significant Step Forward

Designed by nationally renowned Phillips & Brown Architects and developed by quality conscious Makielski Reed Corporation, Old Line Centre is a significant and dramatic new landmark in Charles County. The site for this prestigious 120,000-square-foot professional/office and retail center was chosen for its easy access and high visibility from Route 5 in Waldorf, Maryland. Old Line Centre is strategically located between entrances to St. Charles, the area's fastest growing planned community (25,000 residents and projected to triple by the year 2000) and is near Washington, D.C.'s newest, 1.5 million square-foot regional mall.

A Business Setting that Reflects the Strength and Integrity that is Important to Every Professional

No detail has been overlooked—copper roofing, terraced pond and fountain set amid a beautifully landscaped park, a dramatic three-story atrium, parking that exceeds design requirements is laid among quaint, brick accented pathways, direct exterior access without "double loaded" corridors, and a physical fitness facility exclusively for office and retail owners. Plus, Old Line Centre is a condominium. Purchasers will enjoy the benefits of direct ownership, which include more control, tax depreciation, real estate appreciation and a hedge against leasing escalation.

A striking three-story atrium with full skylight adds drama and volume to style and quality as you enter the professional/office building.
